MURDER FOLLOWS CLOSE ON FAILURE OF PRIVATE BANK

WELLSVILLE IS STIRRED BY TRAGEDY

(By United Press.)

Wellsville, O., June 2.—The murder of Oscar P. Bowers, who was beaten to death with a club, this morning is thought by the authorities to have direct connection with the assignment of the Silver Banking Co.

Following the murder, Mayor Wesson was advised that a plot was brewing to kidnap and hold for $25,000 ransom the three year old son of T. H. Silver, the proprietor of the defunct bank. A special police guard was placed over the boy and his mother until they can leave town.

Bowers was a pool room proprietor, a former grocer, and prominent politically. He was one of the three appraisers appointed to fix the value of the property assigned by Silver to cover the bank's loss.

The depositors of the bank have been showing symptoms of a very ugly feeling. Bowers was last seen closing his pool room last midnight and was attacked shortly afterwards a block from his pool room.

Neighbors hearing the scuffle called the police. The latter found Bowers dead with his head beaten in and evidence of a terrific struggle. A $300 diamond and over $300 in cash had been stolen from the body.

The police think the murderers escaped into the woods.

The committee at the last session voted four for the conviction and four for the acquital of the senator.

The method selected is regarded as the latest thing in jury trials. It took seven hours' debate to agree upon the system and it was finally adopted last evening by a vote of 48 to 20, being substituted for the plan urged by Senator LaFollette of turning the case over to five senators who were not members when the case was voted upon before, and therefore were supposed to be unbiased.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, D. C., June 2.—The senate committee on Privileges and Elections will meet tomorrow to consider the Lorimer case. New Compass Said To Be Wonder

New York, June 2.—The latest notable advance in marine affairs is the gyroscopic compass, which will, it is believed, insure absolute accuracy in navigation and so lessen the "dangers of the deep." The apparatus, combined with a compass, gives absolute accuracy in ascertaining the true magnetic pole. When the gyroscope is revolving there is absolutely no influence that can make it deviate, according to Elmer A. Speer, the well known New York engineer, who invented the mechanism. The invention has been tested on the United States torpedo boat destroyer Drayton, and the trials were successful. Engineer Speer will endeavor to have his invention installed on all the United States warships, as he argues that it will prevent many wrecks and confusing miscalculations. The deviation of the compass needle from the true magnetic pole has always proved a menace to deep sea sailing craft.

5 Sent To The Pen

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2.—Three policemen and two Republican leaders of the seventh ward were today sentenced to one year each in the county prison. They were adjudged guilty of conspiracy, unlawful arrests and intimidations of voters and watchers in the 1910 election.

(By United Press.)

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Absolute governmental control of great combinations of capital is a positive necessity, according to Judge Gary, "boss" of the steel trust.

He told the Stanley steel probe committee today that he thought this question was one of the vital importance. He said:

"I personally believe that the Sherman anti-trust law can never fully prevent the imposition of big aggregations of capital. The time must come when there will be absolute governmental supervision and enforced publicity of all the affairs of big corporations, prices and everything else included. So far as I myself and our corporation is concerned, I would be glad if there was some responsible governmental authority to whom we could look for direction now."

He admitted to the committee that an international combine of all the steel companies, world wide in scope, to prevent secretive fluctuations in steel prices, would probably be formed at a meeting of the steel makers of the world to be held at Brussels, on July 5th and 6th.

Increased prices will be charged for steel rails in the near future, according to Gary. Higher cost of labor and raw material together with demand for heavier rails was given as the reason.

Gary said he had no objection to the government fixing the price of products.

A MEMORY THAT LASTS.

Several thousand persons, from tottering, snow-haired veteran to toddling, golden-haired child, marched in the Decoration day parade.

It was a fine spectacle, reminiscent of tremendous days. Fifty years ago the war for dis-union was on in full tide and the flower of the brawn and manhood of the country moving with steady tread to the gory battle field.

It is well to honor those, who won the victory for the integrity of the country and to hold in imperishable memory a struggle that had a triumph, no where else and no time won in the countless ages that men have gone to war—both victor and vanquished accepting the result as the right and best, dwelling together in peace, marching shoulder to shoulder under the old flag and vieing with each other in admiration of the valorous deeds performed by both.

A DOUBLE DISCREDIT.

The legislature had administered a rebuff to Governor Harmon and thereby has doubly discredited itself, without in anywise affecting his stand with the people.

Shortly before its recess it passed a bill authorizing its members to draw at once all the salary due them for their two years service.

Governor Harmon vetoed this because it was not only a violation of the spirit of the law, but placed the state at a costly disadvantage. It is the rule for the legislators to draw their salary, which is $1,000 a year, in monthly installments of $200 for the first five months of the first year and the salary for the second year at the end thereof.

There are 154 members. This means a total for a year of $154,000, but the terms run for nineteen months. By drawing that amount all at once, instead of monthly, the state loses over $6,500, since it is receiving an average of 3.05 per cent interest on its surplus funds. That, however, is not all it is likely to lose since in the ordinary course of events all the legislators will not serve out their terms. Some will leave the state, others may resign and a few of them may have the grace to die. The overdrawn salary of each one so doing will be lost to the state treasury.

It was no pleasant task to Governor Harmon to veto the measure as no one understands better than he as to the courtesy due from one branch of the administration to the other, nor is more sensitive thereto, but its injustice to the state, its dishonesty with their constituency, was apparent and he manfully followed his painful duty in vetoing it.

In the face of the unanswerable reasons he put forth, both branches of the legislature overrode his veto by a constitutional majority and will get the money, not due them, which is only less culpable than taking it were it never to become due. They think they have given Governor Harman a rebuke thereby, but their action only stigmatizes themselves and makes more distinct, not only the petty spirit of malice which the Governor found opposing him in his reform but the baser quality of lack of official integrity.

John Prather and Nelson Hoffer started for Roanoke, W. Va., Wednesday, where they will work.

Sixty-seven people met at the Hoffer Hill cemetery Tuesday morning and had quite a celebration.

Tommy Miller had a music party Saturday night and all reported a good time.

New Secretary On Job

SECRETARY STIMSON AND GEN. HAL. GRANT

New York, June 2.—The new secretary of war, Henry L. Stimson, is rapidly getting acquainted with the army. He was a prominent figure at the annual garden party at Governor's island, where he was presented to the officers there. General Frederick D. Grant took the secretary in charge and conducted him on an inspection of the government establishment on the island.

LOCAL MEN ACQUITTED

Both John Sudenfeld and Nick Delotelle, two Portsmouth men arrested in Columbus in connection with the death of Judge Frye, of Wayne, W. Va., have been acquitted according to word received Friday morning.

John Hasenauer, a local tailor, also was summoned as a character witness in a long distance telephone talk with his brother Frank, reported that the case was entirely thrown out by the court, as there was not the slightest evidence to connect either of the two men with injuries that resulted in the aged jurist's death. Frye, it was proven, had always been on the best of terms with Sudenfeld and attaches of his place. Delotelle was drawn into the case when it became known he had taken a ring away from the Judge, but it was proven the ring was his own and that he had only loaned it to Frye.

It is stated, however, that the authorities are after a former Portsmouth painter, who is alleged to have relieved Judge Frye of a $350 watch and sold it. The watch has been recovered, but relatives of the Judge expect to prosecute the man if such.

Woman's Greatest Trouble.

Big Sandy, Tenn.—Mrs. Lucy Cantrell, of this place, says: "Every two weeks I had to go to bed and stay there several days. I suffered untold misery. Nothing seemed to help me, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Although I had been afflicted with womanly weaknesses for seven years, Cardui helped me more than anything else ever did. It is surely the best tonic for women on earth." Weakness is woman's greatest trouble. Cardui is woman's greatest medicine, because it overcomes that weakness and brings back strength. In the past 50 years Cardui helped over a million women. Try it for your troubles, today.

POLICE LOST ON NEW BEATS

The police assumed their new beats Thursday evening and while some felt lost off their old stamping grounds all took the shifts good naturedly. Officer Tod Cropper perhaps fared the worst in the re-assistment for he got the biggest portion of the East End and Earlytown.

Officer Sam Philipps too felt out of place in the Lawson Heights district after many years spent patrolling North Chillicothe street.

Officer Oscar Roark under the changes becomes the first substitute of the force but will be made a regular when the annexation goes into effect. Oscar last now is filling the place of Capt. Tom Albrecht who is taking a vacation.

Attorney Theo. K. Funk said today that his client, Mrs. Sarah Hill-Higgins, who was just released from the Greenup jail, would probably bring suit for damages against the C. & O. railway. Mr. Funk says it is practically certain that Mrs. Higgins will never be tried again for the murder of Will Culbertson, the state having clearly failed in making any case against her.

THINK NEGROES KNOW OF N. & W. ROBBERIES

Police are holding William Tuck and Earl Smithers, the strange negroes captured by Officer Beaumont after an exciting chase Thursday.

The negroes are suspected of having pulled off several of the recent jobs along the N. & W. between Pere and Columbus. Deputy Sheriff Pete Smith thought they might have belonged to the gang that robbed Widdig's store on Chillicothe pike.

He questioned them at length. They claimed to have come here direct from Columbus Thursday in search of work.

The pair was overtaken by Beaumont at Eighth and Court streets. One started to run in the direction of the Bottoms and Beaumont whipped out his gun which cause of the negro to change his mind. A third negro and a white boy who had been begging for the gang could not be found.

JOHN FROM LAST YEAR IS DUCKED THIS YEAR

John Lauderbach, the Jackson county character, familiarly known as "John From Last Year," came to grief at the Oyster Bay Thursday evening. The restaurant attaches, out of pity for the old fellow, have been giving him something to eat but he got in a habit of interfering with their work and otherwise making himself generally obnoxious. He refused to vacate when ordered late Thursday and the girls turned a hose on him and old John received an awful ducking. He was a sorrowful looking sight by the time he reached the sidewalk and attracted quite a crowd.

Officer Gulford leaped from a passing street car thinking there was some trouble. Lauderbach talked very incoherently and the officer, until he learned his identity, believed the man demented. He finally induced him to leave the vicinity of the restaurant.

"Anybody Can Clean Silver This Way"

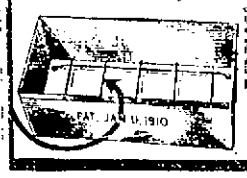

I'm sure"—says the LITTLE HOUSEWIFE. There's no "fussing" with dirty, messy, injurious "pastes" or powders, no rubbing or "real work" of any kind. It's so much quicker, better and more satisfactory, in every way, than any other Method that you'll really enjoy using the

Silver-Clean Pan

This truly wonderful little home labor-saving device is very simple, yet extremely durable in construction. It quickly and thoroughly cleans any silverware of black and tarnish without defacing, marring or scratching, or removing one particle of silver—and leaves it bright and new.

The SILVER-CLEAN PAN is a scientific combination of electro-chemical metals. Hot water, with ordinary baking soda and salt, is placed in the PAN—and the silver merely immersed and left for a few minutes—then taken out and wiped dry, when every trace of tarnish will have been removed—WITHOUT RUBBING OR SCOURING.

Thousands of housewives use the SILVER-CLEAN PAN—and what once was a dreaded task is now a pleasure.

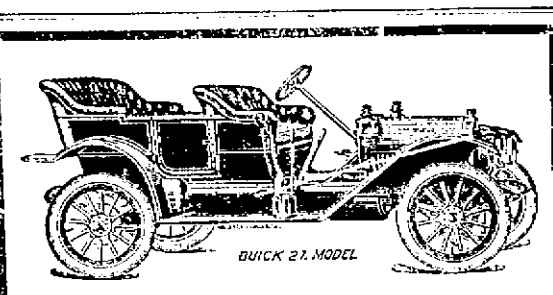

Hotels, clubs, restaurants and dining cars also use the PAN. The household size, No. 1, slightly larger, complete with directions. Shipped on free trial, express prepaid, for only $1.25. If not found entirely satisfactory, we willingly pay return charges and refund the purchase price. Beware of imitations. None genuine without grid, wire screw. Cloths and other forms injure silverware. The "Silver-Clean" does not.

GEO. HARMON DROPS DEAD IN HIS WAGON

Stricken with heart failure as he was driving John Werner's delivery wagon east on Sixth street Friday morning, George Harmon died before he could be removed from it.

The fatal attack came upon him while near Sixth and Court streets and the driverless horse kept on its way till it reached Chillicothe street, where pedestrians noticed the inanimate form of the driver and stopped the horse.

Harmon was carried into Fisher & Streich's pharmacy by Ralph Streich, Laban Carpenter and J. N. Stevens, a traveling salesman. Dr. S. B. McKerrihan, who was in the store at the time, pronounced Harmon dead and attributed the cause to heart failure. Harmon gasped once or twice before he was taken out of the wagon, but he was already in the throes of death. For some time he had been complaining of his heart and to those intimate with him his death came as no surprise.

Mr. Harmon for the past three years had been employed by John Werner, a Gallia street grocer. He was 49 years old and was well known in the city, being a member of the Modern Woodmen of America and an Odd Fellow. He was employed by Theo. Pierron when the latter conducted a grocery on Market street. He had been troubled with heart failure for a number of years and always predicted that he would have a sudden death.

Mr. Harmon arose as usual on Friday morning and reported for work at 6 o'clock. For the past two years he had boarded with Mrs. Jennie Mershon of Sixth and Market streets. He is survived by his aged mother, Mrs. Sarah C. Harmon and two daughters, Mrs. F. H. Fritts of Lincoln street with whom Mrs. Harmon resides and Mrs. Hattie E. Ellison of 24 Gallia street.

The dead man also leaves three half brothers in Pennsylvania. He was an industrious man and had many friends in the city. Mrs. Harmon, his aged mother, is also afflicted with heart trouble and the news of her son's death was conveyed to her as gently as possible.

The funeral services will likely be held [illegible] afternoon.

LOCAL FIRM WILL CONTINUE VALUABLE AGENCY

Wurster Bros., of this city, have just closed a deal whereby they will continue to be agents for ZEMO—the well known remedy for Eczema, Dandruff, and all diseases of the skin and scalp.

The extraordinary leap that this clean liquid external treatment for skin affections has made into public favor in the last few years proves its wonderful curative properties and makes it indeed a valuable addition to the fine stock of remedial agents carried by the Wurster Bros.' Drug Company.

They have a limited supply of samples. One of which will be given free to any skin sufferer who wishes to test the merit of the medicine. A booklet, "How To Preserve the Skin," will also be given to those interested.

BAUM GIVEN MORE TIME

Lou Baum, Eeventh street grocer, who was fined $700 and costs Wednesday evening by Judge Blair for "bootlegging," was unable to raise the amount Thursday and his time has been extended to the end of the week. If by that time he is not able to produce the amount, he will have to make the trip to the work house.

It is thought that if Baum has to go to the works he will have to stay there long enough to work out the greater part of the fine. It is probable that he will not get out under a year if he is compelled to go. Baum is making a desperate effort to raise the money and may be able to do so by selling a part of his property.

ONE OF THE HEIRS

What to Do for a Sickly Child—Trial Free

Many a mother has written thanks after following these suggestions

It has always been a mooted question just what to do with an ailing child, for mothers disagree and few doctors specialize in it. But this much is certain, that in the majority of cases faulty bowel movement is at the bottom of the trouble.

The first thing, then, to do with a constipated child is to give it a laxative, not a violent fruit-stew or such thing but a genuine, scientific laxative. Many are recommended but few have been found worthy. Among the latter none stands out more prominently than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which mothers in all parts of the country have used for a generation.

It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. So child will refuse it as it is not a loathsome and violent cathartic pill, but a mild, gentle, non-griping liquid. It has also tonic properties that strengthen and tone the little stomach and bowel muscles so that they learn to do their work naturally again. Mrs. Lida N. Williams of Wathena, Kas. and Mrs. Emma Blakenship of Bedford, Ind., always give their children Syrup Pepsin.

If you hesitate to get even a fifty cent bottle and do not care to ask your neighbor about it (who probably is a user of Syrup Pepsin), then write Dr. Caldwell and he will cheerfully send you a sample bottle free of charge, and in this way you can make a test without personal cost. Simply send your name and address to the doctor. A great many thousand mothers have had a free sample in recent years, save it to the children according to directions and now have healthy, romping youngsters.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

SOCIETY

A surprise in every sense of the word was that given to Rev. and Mrs. T. H. McAfee Thursday night at their home on East Second street, when about one hundred and fifty members of the First Baptist church gathered there to help celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. McAfee was at the home of Mrs. W. H. Howard when a telephone message reached her to come home at once. Fearing that something was wrong she hurried home only to be met by a host of friends.

The impromptu gathering had been planned by Miss Mame Patton and Mrs. Jessie Knealey, neighbors of Rev. and Mrs. McAfee, who had casually heard Mrs. McAfee, only a few nights ago, state that June the first was their wedding anniversary. They notified the members of the church who heartily responded to the invitation to the surprise.

Not only was the gathering a surprise to the happy couple but when Mr. George Wymer, the oldest member of the Baptist church, presented Mrs. McAfee with one dozen and a half handsome silver spoons, and Rev. McAfee with a purse containing $16 they were both overjoyed, and with eyes filled with tears, they were unable to respond to the presentation.

The evening was delightfully spent in a pleasant, social way. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Rev. and Mrs. McAfee have grown up with five handsome daughters, remaining young in heart and spirit, and their house is one of the pleasant places in which to gather to spend a pleasant evening. Since coming to Portsmouth they have endeared themselves not only to the members of the congregation of which Rev. Mr. McAfee is pastor, but also to every one who has had the pleasure of forming their acquaintance.

The Value of an Hour

E. H. Harriman in speaking of the value of time, once said: "The average life of man being so short, he must necessarily weigh time and utilize every hour by the addition and subtraction of minutes, and each hour is supposed to contain a certain amount of incidents, which must produce to represent a certain amount of money in proportion to the value of his time. He must then put that money to work where its earning capacity is the greatest." The earning capacity of a dollar with us is 5 per cent interest and principal guaranteed, and one dollar starts an account with The Portsmouth Savings & Loan Co., the 5 per cent Building Association.

The confirmation exercises at the Congregation B'nai Abraham, Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock, celebrating the Shebuoth, the anniversary of the Israelites receiving the ten commandments, were attended by a large number of the members of the Temple and many other churches in the city.

The exercises were conducted by Rabbi Beton, a student of the Hebrew Union College, of Cincinnati, who conducts services in the Synagogue every two weeks. The Rabbi first held short services, after which the choir sang, "Fear Not, O Israel."

The two confirmants, Miss Helen Atlas and Miss Doris Lehman, then entered the chancel, gowned in white and carrying white bouquets.

The church was beautifully decorated in palms and masses of daisies and other white flowers, and made a pretty background for the two young Misses in white.

The opening prayer was delivered by Miss Doris Lehman, which was followed by the choir singing, "O, Be Joyful." Miss Lehman took the Torah from the Ark and Miss Atlas read the ten commandments in Hebrew. The Haphtara Reading, Ruth first and second, was made by Miss Lehman. Miss Atlas then took the Torah and deposited it into the Ark.

The choir composed of Mrs. R. C. Lyon, Miss M. J. Smith, Miss L. Anderson, Mr. J. C. Yeley and Mr. F. E. Adams, sang "Power and Love," which was followed by an essay by Miss Lehman on "The Fourth Commandment—The Sabbath."

After the choir rendered "The Lord is My Shepherd," Miss Atlas delivered her essay on "The Unity of God," which was followed by the choir singing "The Lord is My Light."

Rabbi Beton then delivered a splendid address to the confirmants, after which the choir sang "Glory to God."

The blessing of the confirmants was followed by a selected song by the choir and the closing prayer delivered by Miss Atlas.

At the close of the services Vice President A. Schapiro presented the Misses Atlas and Lehman with attractive certificate of confirmation.

Both young ladies received many handsome gifts from friends and relatives. Receptions will be given in their honor this evening from 8 until 10.

Although their friends anticipated the happy event in the near future, the exact date had been kept a secret. The ceremony was said by Rev. J. W. Atkinson of Manly church in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom, and a few intimate friends. The beautiful bride was attired in a girlish gown of white batiste, with trimmings of la[illegible].

Both young people are well known in Portsmouth, possessing a large circle of friends. Mr. Heisel is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Val Heisel of Franklin avenue, and is employed in the county treasurer's office, holding the position of deputy. Mr. and Mrs. Heisel left this afternoon for Cincinnati where they will spend their honeymoon.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R. F. D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

HOLY REDEEMER COMMENCEMENT A FINE AFFAIR

With the Grand theatre crowded as it has never been before in the past two years, the commencement exercises of the commercial course in the Holy Redeemer school were given Thursday night before a most appreciative audience.

The entertainment was complete in every detail. It showed that the Sisters of the school had worked long and faithfully to make it a success, and their efforts were surely rewarded.

The curtain arose on the graduates and a full chorus of members of the Holy Redeemer choir and school. They sang Thompson's "Moonlight Will Come Again" and were heartily encored.

The stage was a picture in its decorations of palms and ferns and roses, the class flower. The colors of the class, purple and gold, and the class motto, "Honor, not honors," were shown on pennants.

After the opening chorus, the graduates took their seats upon the stage and their classmate, Miss Frieda Brunner, delivered a splendid oration on "Labor and Honor." Among the many fine points in her oration, she said: "Sweet to the heart of man are honors and supremely delightful when fairly won and rightly bestowed." "We pay him the highest tribute when he say, He is the soul of honor."

Rev. Father J. E. McQuick presented the diplomas to the graduates with many compliments to those who received them. He said: "No pains nor expense has been spared to plant in your minds and hearts the seed of wisdom, and in behalf of your parents, teachers, pastor and warm friends, I congratulate you on what you have achieved."

Miss Frieda Catherine Brunner and Miss Mary Catherine McMahon received diplomas with the highest distinction, and Miss Marguerite Elsa Scherer with distinction. The other graduates were Theresa Catherine Ackermann, Julia Marie Dengan, Mary Cecilia Forrest, Gertrude Magdalen Montavon, Mary Augusta Pirrung, Sarah Cecelia Reilly, William Feurt Crawford, Thomas Matthew McNamara, Carl Joseph Wagner, Charles Aloysius Walters, William James Whalen.

After the presentation of the diplomas, Father McQuick stated that the faculty of the Holy Redeemer school had decided to award gold medals to the two highest in the class in application and deportment. This was a great surprise to the pupils, and when they were presented to Miss Frieda Catherine Brunner and Miss Mary Catherine McMahon there was great applause. Miss Brunner also received a medal for being the most efficient in typewriting.

The second part of the entertainment was one of the best ever seen at the Grand. There have been many comic operas seen at the theatre, but the dances, drills and songs of the little folk were superior to most of them. The scenery was particularly pretty with its many colored garlands, and the changing scenes made an attractive scene long to be remembered.

One of the biggest hits of the evening was the specialty entitled, "How would you like to be the Iceman?" This was performed by the boys and was a typical base ball scene. The language used by the youngsters brought forth peals of laughter from the many [illegible] in the audience, and when one [illegible] a famous slide to second the [illegible] went wild. They were coached by Billy Doyle, scout for the St. Louis Americans.

Howard Frowine sang, "If I Were a Millionaire" and "Gee, There is Class to a Girl Like You" in a most pleasing manner. The little fellow has a splendid voice and is a good actor.

Little Miss Dorothy Eck received a tremendous applause in her skit as "Topsy."

The cantata, "Mother Goose and Company," was indeed beautiful. The first scene opened up with the visit of Mother Goose to Gertrude. Gertrude was carried into a strange land by Mother Goose and there permitted to see all of the characters in the famous rhymes. She first visited Mistress Mary's Garden. Here she saw the famous flowers, sunbeams, butterflies and bees, and the scene was an exquisite one.

In the third scene King Cole with his fiddlers three, visited Mother Goose and asked to see all of the pupils in her school. Not one was forgotten. From the Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe with fifty or more children, cunningly dressed in gingham aprons and overalls, down to Santa Claus. And each character had a clever verse to recite before the king. The youngest actor on the stage was Paul Doyle, the sweet little three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle, who acted his part as well as the grownups.

The caste of characters was as follows:

Gertrude....... Marguerite Scherer
Mother Goose.. Catherine McMahon
The Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe .... Mary Pirrung
Old King Cole.... John McNamara
The King's Fiddlers.. George Born, Charles Walters, Charles Davis
Jack Spratt....... Feurt Crawford

Red Riding Hood... Gertrude Lang
Cinderella .... Julia Dragan
Old Mother Hubbard .... Frieda Brunner
Queen of Hearts .... Gertrude Montavon
Polly Flinders....... Theresa Davis
Curly Locks.... Frances Schroeder
Santa Claus, Flowers, Sunbeams, Bees, Butterflies.

The entertainment was one that must be seen to enjoy it. It was by far the best cantata ever given by the pupils of Holy Redeemer school and one of the best ever seen in the city.

Too much praise cannot be given to the good Sisters who made the evening such a success.

Miss Austin Doyle cleverly acted as pianiste and Mr. William Spitzer as musical director. Bode's orchestra also dispensed sweet music during the short intermissions.

Roanoke's Mayor Is Guilty

Roanoke, Va., June 2.—The jury in the case of Mayor Joel H. Cutchin, charged with malfeasance and misfeasance in office, returned a verdict finding the Mayor guilty on all four charges contained in the rule. The jury's verdict means that the Mayor will be removed from office.

It was charged that he had knowledge of the existence of unlawful houses and that he favored such places in his official capacity. The announcement of the verdict was received in absolute silence. Mayor Cutchin seemed to be crushed.

His attorney asked for a new trial and also for a suspension of judgment for 90 days, in which time to prepare an appeal.

Sees Trestle Afire And Saves A Train

Huntington, W. Va., June 2.—Reports received here last night from Ben Lomond, a small station on the B. & O. near Gallipolis Ferry, tell of the almost miraculous escape of the eastbound B. & O. express which leaves Huntington at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Dr. O. W. Lasher, of Ben Lomond, was returning home from a professional trip, when he discovered that a small trestle on the B. & O. was on fire. He realized that the Ohio Valley Express would be due in a very few minutes. A hasty examination of the trestle showed that the damage done was sufficient to make an attempt to cross it extremely perilous. He had hardly finished his examination when he heard the express approaching. He ran toward it, and succeeded in attracting the attention of the engineer, who stopped the train within about fifty feet of the burning bridge. The train crew formed a bucket brigade, put out the fire and, drawing upon their stock of emergency tools and timbers, made a few needed repairs, and the train passed slowly over in safety.

Persons who examined the damaged trestle at the time believe that if the train had plunged upon it full force before the trestle was strengthened, it would have gone down and disaster would have followed.

New Boston Buys Oil For the Streets

At a meeting of the New Boston council held Thursday evening an order was placed for a tank car of oil, consisting of 6500 gallons, which will be used on the roads pike from the east to west line of the corporation line.

A report was read showing that the public spirited citizens of New Boston had subscribed more than $900 to help defray the expense of oiling the thoroughfare. It was also stated that the county commissioners had purchased a similar amount of oil and that they would use it to the west line of the corporation, thus assuring a dustless road from Young and Gallia streets, to the extreme east corporation line of New Boston. It is also likely that the commissioners will oil the road through Stewartville.

At the meeting of council the only bid received for the cutting down of Harrison avenue and which was submitted by Contractor Hudson, was rejected, the reason for this action not being made public.

Aged Negro Faces Charge Of Robbery

Jess Johnson, colored, of Lucasville, was arrested by Constable Otis Thursday afternoon, and will be up before Squire Byron to-day on a charge of highway robbery preferred by Alex. Shelton, also colored, of Lucasville.

Johnson, who is up in the seventies, pleaded not guilty, and being unable to give bond, was taken to the county jail. He will be given a hearing Saturday afternoon.

According to Shelton, Johnson came to his home and finding no one present but his wife, Mary Shelton, demanded that she give him all her money, which was $1.50. The woman was badly frightened, as she alleges that Jackson threatened to take her life. She says she handed over all the money she had. When her husband returned home she apprised him of the facts and he caused the arrest.

END CAME TO JOHN ABBOTT

No more will tourists in the Kentucky Hills, opposite here, be greeted by the cheerful smile and hospitable hand of Col. John Abbott, for the sage of Springville has passed to the Great Beyond.

The aged hermit died Thursday evening about 5 o'clock at the home of his niece, Mrs. Iza Abbott Dressler, of 501 Robinson avenue, with whom the lone surviving sister, Miss Mary A. Abbott, resides. She was present when the end came.

News of the death of Mr. Abbott came as a great surprise to his many friends and acquaintances, for until Thursday few knew of his illness. He had suffered with la grippe during the winter, but continued at his occupation as a plasterer. A [illegible] pneumonia. Relatives sought to have him leave his hillside home and come to this city [illegible] recovered, but he preferred to remain in the midst of the trees he had planted, feeling sure he would soon overcome his ailment. His sister attended him. By Monday evening his condition had become so serious that it was decided to remove him. He was carried down the hill on a stretcher and placed in a hack which took him to the Dressler home, but he grew steadily worse. He remained conscious to the last and his chief regret seemed to be that he was away from his flowers and trees which he had loved so dearly throughout his life. A born naturalist, his happiest moments were when in the woods.

Col. Abbott was 71 years of age on Decoration day. He was born at Fairmount, W. Va., and after the [illegible] his father, who was a farmer and stock raiser, moved the family to Belpre, Ohio, opposite Parkersburg. John followed plastering from early youth and was one of the very best, as some of his work in various old-time buildings of Portsmouth still attests.

Col. Abbott came to Portsmouth from Belpre about 40 years ago. About a quarter of a century ago he bought a tract of hillside land in Kentucky of Mrs. Eliza Kehoe, and has since lived on that side of the river. About fifteen years ago he erected a cabin on the highest point of the hill and lived there both during winter and summer until several years ago, when he came near dying of blood poisoning. Thousands of people have visited him in his cabin, generally on Sundays, and to one and all he always extended a hearty welcome. He was never married. Before the war he became a member of the Southern Methodist church.

He was a man of wonderful vitality, and though [illegible] suffering accidents, was always quick to recover. One of his most serious accidents was when the Maxwell building on Gallia street collapsed.

As an early riser Mr. Abbott was one of the first [illegible] Portsmouth [illegible] streets at daybreak. Besides the sister, there survive [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Jane [illegible] half-brothers [illegible] [illegible]

Short funeral services will be held at the Dressler [illegible] Dr. [illegible] church, will [illegible] will be taken to Belpre Saturday morning for [illegible]

Grocers To Meet Monday Evening

Owing to the fact that all arrangements had not been completed, the plan of the retail grocers to observe Thursday afternoon as a half-holiday during the summer months, did not go into effect on Thursday. It is hoped to have everything ready, however, to close the stores next Thursday afternoon.

A meeting of retail grocers has been called for next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Staiger's grocery, corner of Ninth and Offnere streets. Every groceryman in the city is cordially invited to attend this meeting and a very large attendance is desired. So far 30 grocers have signified a desire to observe the half-holiday.

A movement is on foot to get merchants in other lines of business observe Thursday as a half-holiday instead of Friday. It is argued that Thursday will be a better day as many farmers are in the habit of laying in their supplies for Sunday on Fridays, and trade would be lost by being closed on that day. On the other hand Thursday is generally an off day, in business, locally.

Business Is Better On N&W

Four train crews have been put back to work on the N. & W. Scioto division owing to a heavy coal run in the last few days.

Freight business on the road has increased greatly in the past few weeks and more trains are being run daily than at any time for several months.

Every engine has been pressed into service and all the train crews who were laid off sometime ago are again back on duty assisting in handling the heavy freight traffic.

Business is certainly booming on the N. & W. just now, some 30 to 40 heavily loaded freight trains departing from the local terminal daily.

No Chance to Fight, Many Are Deserting

Young men enlisting in the Regular army away from this section are deserting at a surprising rate.

The police authorities have received notices of at least a half dozen within the past few weeks. The latest for whose return a reward of $50 is offered is Allie Fraley, aged 22, of Garrison, Ky. Fraley enlisted in April and was among the first raw recruits sent to San Antonio for the army maneuvers. He evidently tired of his lot for he disappeared from the camp on May 18.

Most of those who enlisted recently hoped to see some fighting and tired of routine army life.

Runs Nail Into Foot

While walking in the rear of the store Thursday, Adam Scanner of the Central Hardware Co., sustained a painful injury through stepping on a nail.

The nail punctured the sole of his shoe and ran into his left foot, inflicting a dangerous wound. Mr. Scanner was hurt in a like manner a short time ago. He is now barely able to navigate and is using the injured foot as little as possible and taking all precaution against blood poisoning.

Nye's Acquittal A Big Blow To State In Bribery Cases

Columbus, Ohio, June 2.—Failure to secure a conviction in the case in which Dr. George B. Nye, representative from Pike county, was charged with soliciting a $500 bribe from State Printer E. A. Crawford in connection with the Adams county judicial gerrymander bill, was a great blow to the state. Prosecuting Attorney Edward Turner was not ready to say after the verdict came in whether or not the other indictments pending against Nye, based on information furnished by the Burns detectives, would be pushed. This will probably depend on the success of the state in the bribery cases against other legislators. The jury first stood 8 to 4 for acquittal, then 10 to 2 and then 11 to 1, and finally unanimous for acquittal. Nye's mother, his wife and sisters were in the court room when the verdict was rendered. The mother was overcome by joy, suffering a complete collapse when the announcement was made that her son had been acquitted. Attorney General Hogan, who was associated with Prosecuting Attorney Turner in the case, had stated all along privately to his closest friends that he was very doubtful whether or not the state could secure a conviction.

Representative Owen J. Evans, of Stark county, will be the next legislator to be tried. His case will begin early next week, possibly on Monday. He is charged with soliciting a bribe of $500 from J. F. Weiss, secretary of the Stark-Tuscarawas Brewing Company, for his vote on the Dean bill to repeal the Rose county local option law. Senator L. R. Andrews, charged with soliciting a bribe of $200 from F. S. Harrison in connection with the Whittemore insurance bill, will be tried the week of June 19. The trials of the other indicted legislators, Senators Huffman and Cetone, Representative A. Clark Lowry, of Senator Crawford, and Sergeant-at-arms Diegle have not yet [illegible]. After the Evans case is [illegible] of, George E. Wood, of Columbus, former stationary clerk in the secretary of state's office, will [illegible] for alleged presentation of [illegible] vouchers. His indictment grows out of the Ruggles-Cale Company transactions, which has to do with bills paid for supplies purchased by the secretary of state's office, for which it is alleged false bills were rendered.

The prosecution says that the Nye case was the weakest, technically, of all those to be tried. At the [illegible], it was thought this would be the strongest case of the lot. What [illegible] the case was the fact that [illegible] brought out in the trial that there had been bitter enmity existing between Nye and State Printer Crawford, and that there was evidence to show that the latter had on more than one occasion declared that he would get Nye if it took [illegible] years to do so. The defense [illegible] many witnesses to impeach the [illegible] one of the principal witness [illegible] state.

The indicted legislators were [illegible] elated over the verdict. They [illegible] it hard to regard it as a prelude of what would happen in [illegible] cases. The verdict came within half an hour after the final adjournment of the general assembly. Dr. Nye said that the result was no surprise to him and that he felt that the state a verdict of acquittal would be rendered. If he is tried [illegible] other counts, it will no doubt not be for some time yet; not until after the other cases are out of the way.

Both Wrong Says Pratt

Frank Pratt now comes forward with the plain statement that as weather prophets both Herb Corriell and Tom Calvert will have to admit that they are "has beens" and not worthy the name of prophets. He says that both have failed dismally of late in their prognostications and the people will have to depend upon Billy Batt In or go to consulting the yellow back almanacs, like they did before the Times' weather man took a steady job.

Lightning Kills Few.

In 1908 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at The Fisher & Streich Pharmacy.

DON'T BE MISLED

Stomach Trouble Often Presents Symptoms That May Be Mistaken for Signs of Other Disorders.

Palpitation of the heart does not imply that the vital organ is diseased.

Pain in the back does not necessarily mean kidney disease.

Headache does not often indicate that there is anything wrong with your head.

All of these symptoms are caused by stomach trouble and when this is righted the alarming symptoms disappear. If you have them look to the condition of your stomach for the cause before you start to treat the symptoms rather than the disease.

If you are suffering from stomach trouble you cannot do better than follow the advice of Mr. J. H. Barnhart, a farmer, on R. F. D. No. 5, Butler, Pa., who says:

"When living near Mt. Vernon, Ohio, I became seriously ill from stomach trouble and finally had to give up my work as school teacher. I had no appetite and what food I did eat would lie heavily on my stomach. My bowels were irregular and I was reduced in weight from 160 to 130 pounds. I was nervous, could not get a good night's sleep and had no ambition to work. My back ached and there were pains through my arms and shoulders. My heart was weak and the least exertion would cause it to palpitate. In the morning I would be dizzy on getting up from bed and there would be black specks before my eyes. My head would ache all over but particularly in the back. I was pale and had a hacking cough which alarmed my friends.

"The doctor treated me for stomach trouble but didn't help me much and and then I tried several medicines which were recommended to me but with no relief. The druggist urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and was so certain that they would help me that I decided to give them a trial. After taking a few boxes I began to feel a little hungry, something I hadn't felt for a year. I also began to sleep better and I was so encouraged that I kept on with the pills. The result was that my stomach became strong, my other troubles disappeared and I was cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale at all druggists, or will be mailed to any address, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Rev. A. H. F. Larkins, pastor of the Oldtown church at Bertha, has gone to his old home at Bethel, O., on a visit. Officers of the church are making great preparations for the Children's Day exercises next Sunday. Souvenirs will be given away in an effort to exceed the attendance record of last year which was 201.

A large sized crowd attended the debt paying meeting held at the Findlay Street Methodist church Thursday evening.

Dr. James Eason and Mr. Geo. D. Selby of Bigelow church and Rev. W. C. Hartinger and Mr. W. B. Anderson of Trinity church, were present. They assumed one-half of the indebtedness on condition that the membership raise the other half.

The sum of $150 was subscribed during the meeting and $113 had been previously raised. The total indebtedness of the church amounts to $1000 chiefly for the building of a new parsonage.

S.S.S. FOR SUMMER SKIN DISEASES

During the summer most persons are annoyed with pimples, boils, rashes or eruptions, while others suffer more severely with Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some kindred skin disease. All skin affections come from humors and acids in the circulation. The blood, as it circulates through the system, deposits these humors and acids in the sensitive membranous flesh which lies just beneath the outer skin. This acrid matter causes inflammation and a discharge which breaks through the delicate cuticle, and skin diseases are the result. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be freed from all acids and humors, and for this purpose nothing equals S.S.S. This great blood purifier completely removes every particle of the impurity, enriches the blood, and in this way permanently cures skin diseases. S. S. S. cures because it purifies the blood and thus does away with the cause. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice you may desire sent free. S.S.S. is for sale at drug stores.

Grocer Leonard Cook Ignored Court Order, Got Ten Days In Jail

When Judge Blair wants a man, and issues a subpoena for him to come into court to testify, said man had better do so at once and not attempt to put the judge off for such work will not be tolerated by him.

One dose of what the judge administers for a failure to comply with orders was not enough for Leonard Cook, East End grocer, when he was sent to jail for contempt Wednesday evening for not answering certain questions that the judge asked him. After pining behind the iron bars for a few hours Cook decided that he would feel better out than in jail and answered the questions that were put to him.

The judge, however, wanted to talk a matter over with Cook Thursday afternoon and telephoned for him to come down to the court house by one o'clock. The time came and went and Cook did not show up. Court Bailiff Fred Baker, was then sent after him, but he refused to accompany the bailiff and instead went into his room and laid down. The bailiff reported the fact to Judge Blair who dispatched the sheriff after Cook immediately.

For his contrariness, Cook is now in the county jail serving out 10 days and $25.00 and costs.

Contract Was Let

Bids will be received ... [illegible] tracts awarded on June 1?th for painting the roof of the Infirmary building and all the out buildings including the large barn.

EXPERT OPENED SAFE ALL RIGHT

The report that the safe in Jackson Cropper's real estate office on East Eleventh street, had been blown open by robbers on Thursday night and its contents of $200 had been carried away, caused a whole lot of excitement in the North End, Friday morning.

The excitement attendant upon the rumor, subsided however, when it was found that the safe had been torn to pieces by an alleged expert, who opened the safe all right, but left it a mass of debris and fit only for the scrap heap.

The safe which had been the property of Mr. Cropper for the past few years, stood in the corner of his office without doing its owner one whit of good, for Mr. Cropper had lost the combination and despite the fact that hundreds of persons had tried to open it, it remained as tight as a clam. Thursday an expert safe man visited one of the local banks and Mr. Cropper, who happened by, offered to pay the expert handsomely if he would open the safe. A bargain was made and the expert retaired to Cropper's office.

"That's a cinch," said the expert and he soon drilled a hole in the door, but the combination was too much for him. Then he drilled a larger hole and still the lock refused to give up its secret. Then he got a chisel, hammer, sledge and crowbar and went to work with a right royal good will. Finally after much labor ... [illegible] ... The safe was opened ... and it will be necessary to get a new door or a complete ... one or the other. There ... nothing of value in the safe ... a lot of sundry receipts ... poultry book on how to ... hen's lay.

FERRET WAS RETURNED

Barber Bert Baker is once again in possession of his pet ferret. Bert had just finished reading the Times item Thursday evening telling of its disappearance when three scared looking youngsters rushed into Sperry's shop with the ferret. All talked at once trying to convince him that they had found the ferret on the street and begging him not to have them arrested. Bert assured the boys they would not be disturbed and thanked them for the return of his pet.

HOLLAND HAD SAD TIME WITH WIVES

Nelson L. Holland, colored junk dealer, who was arrested Thursday evening on charges of adultery and bigamy, was transferred from the city prison to the county jail Friday morning. He has asked permission to give bond but the amount has not yet been fixed.

Before being turned over to the sheriff, Holland was put through a severe course of questioning by Judge Beatty at his office, concerning his matrimonial relations. He said that he had taken up with the Grant woman, with whom he has been living here for a number of years, at Dayton, O. He later met Miss Josie Sampson whom he married in 1894 at Dayton. He says that they lived together two months in Dayton and then he left her because she was untrue to him. He then took up again with the Grant woman and lived with her for the next 15 months during which time the daughter now living with her mother was born.

The Grant woman deserting him in Dayton, he again took up with the woman that he had married and lived with her for three years, again leaving her because of alleged unfaithfulness. He says that he then went to Columbus and hunted up the Grant woman again. Ending her and her daughter in a house of ill repute. He claims that he wanted her to give him the child but she refused. In order to get her out of the house, he says that he rented a room for her and that they lived together there before coming to Portsmouth.

Holland tried to deny that he had been living with the Grant woman since coming to Portsmouth and claimed that she was only keeping house for him. He said that he has met the Bailey woman whom he married Wednesday evening, in Columbus eight years ago and that they had been corresponding ever since.

When asked if his first wife had ever gotten a divorce from him and had married, he stated that he had learned that she had been married in Piqua two years after their final separation. He said that he understood that she had been granted a divorce from him at Troy, O., about two years after their final separation. He said that he did not consider it necessary for him to find out definitely whether his first wife had gotten a divorce as she had remarried. A blind minister, now living in Columbus is said to have performed the ceremony at his first wife's second marriage.

After the Bailey woman came to Portsmouth, she stayed at Holland's home.

Before being committed to jail, Holland gave all his money, about $2.50 to his new wife who had accompanied him to the court house. She had called at the city prison to see him Thursday evening and brought him some green onions. The officers thought best to retain her there over night also, but upon orders from Judge Beatty she was later released.

Judge Beatty has telegraphed the county clerk at Troy relative to whether Holland's first wife had obtained a divorce from Holland there as he alleges. Nothing will be done in the meantime until the Troy officials have been heard from.

JOHNSON WILL SAIL FOR EUROPE

Chicago, June 2.—Jack Johnson, world's champion, is in Chicago packing for his trip to England to the coronation. He will leave Chicago for New York Sunday and will sail Tuesday.

Johnson is eager to recenter the ring. He denied that he had been matched with Bombardier Wells, in England, but said that he would take $30,000 for his end for such a fight.

The champ will land in England June 13, but he is not superstitious.

EVENING TIMES SPORTS

Champs Like Beans For Thursday Diet

Four to three, Portsmouth!

That's the cheering news as it came over the wire from Lima, Thursday evening, and it was a sight to see it peddled back and forth on Chillicothe street, thence to Gallia, up Gallia to John, where it went through the shoe factories like Chinese snuff in a crowd—only more pleasant.

That victory meant that the Champs had won five and lost four out of nine games, and conclusively demonstrated that the team is better on the road this season than last year's aggregation.

This fellow has always maintained that if the Champs win but half of their games on the road they will fly that pennant as sure as the sun will rise tomorrow. A team has to be away above the ordinary to break even when battling on foreign fields, especially in minor league circles. So far the Champs have done it and the outlook is most encouraging. More than one-half of their games have been played on foreign soil, and when this article was written they have a three and one-half game lead over their nearest competitor, Lancaster. They have twelve more games to play before they return to Millbrook park, and should they break even in the remaining contests, it is almost a cinch they will be in the lead when they begin whooping 'er up at this part of the state. When they arrive here they will have played 55 games, 35 of them being on foreign territory. Any fan with any reasoning ability will see at a glance, then the possibility of the Champs finishing in the lead, for a team in the Read league who can stick in front with almost two-thirds of their games played away from home and loved ones has a mighty fine chance at the bunting. Mind you, this writer has never claimed the Champs had a cinch—he does not live in Chillicothe or Lancaster or Hamilton. Help!

But, kid, we are surely going some, eh!

Reds Broke Even Against Cardinals

The Reds and Cards split even in their double header at St. Louis on Thursday, the Cards taking No. 1 by the score of 6 to 5 and the Reds winning the aftermath 6 to 4.

The Reds had the Cardinals 5 to 0 in the eighth inning of the first game, but Bresnahan's boys made a wonderful finish, driving over 6 scores in the last frame, breaking the heart of Manager Griffith. Bobby Keefe was the pitcher, and after holding the Cards to 4 hits in eight frames, grew careless and was hammered for further orders in the last round. His place was taken by Nig Smith, but the Cards were not to be denied and they kept up the terrific bombardment. The poor besmeared Reds then went in and copped the second game 6 to 4 with Smith pitching. Zmich, former Digger, pitched against the Reds in both games and showed considerable class.

Well, the Reds are now at home and maybe they will at least break even. They should at least, do that well against the lowly Bostons.

COBB TO PLAY WITH ALL STARS

Washington, June 2.—Ty Cobb will play with Jimmy McAleer's All-Stars when the American League season closes, whether they go to Cuba, Japan or Mars. It's all alike to the pride of the Detroit Tigers. That was the last thing McAleer did before he left Detroit, get Cobb's promise to play with the All-Stars.

"Jim, I'll play for your All-Stars whether you take us to Japan, Cuba, or even up to Mars. And I think we'll win a few games, too, when we get together."

"All right, Ty," replied Jim, as they breezed through the roads around Grosse Point. "I'm counting on you for my team, remember. If the Athletics cop the flag you'll play against them with me, and then go somewhere. I haven't decided yet where we'll go, but I'm counting on you."

"He was the one player I wanted more than all the others," said McAleer today. "He is the greatest attraction in baseball, and, with him in my line up, I can trim any team playing ball."

"Buds" Budget

(By Bud Gableman.)
(In Lima Times.)

Our boys looked like anything but tailenders Wednesday and performed with more than ordinary skill in the field. Long handled a number of hard chances, while McClintock took care of everything that come his way. Newton's error was excusable, the light haired lad letting a foul fly slip through his fingers after going almost to the bleachers for it.

Hartwig was quite wild, but only one of his passes figured in the scoring. He pitched a far better game than the score showed, and kept the hits well scattered. Had Horning handled Hinte's roller the teams might be playing yet. This lad has a world of speed for one so light, besides having a wonderful assortment of curves.

Tennant's hit is all the more remarkable on account of the high wind which blew all through the game, and which kept back hits to the outfield. Okey saw at a glance that he would have no chance to make the catch, and started full tilt to field the ball. Tennant was over the plate long before the ball was returned to the diamond.

Conwell went through the game without a chance, and "Irish" is not sorry, for he says this field is a hoodoo for him. He always feels a few errors in his system when he alights from the car in Lima.

Weinberg is right there with the snap throws. He got Okey three foot off first in the seventh, and would have had Hinte in the first inning had any one covered the bag.

Hinte had two other chances to break up the game but he saved his strength until the glorious eighth. He was up against a southpaw yesterday, and did not look as strong as usual at the bat.

McGraynor is here, anxiously awaiting some disposition of his case, says the Chillicothe News-Advertiser. The boy is heart broken over the way he has been treated, and demands that his release be given him. Mack declares that some one must pay his salary and he refuses to be kicked around at the pleasure of some scout.

WALTER JUSTUS LIKES THE LANKS

Walter Justus, former Lancaster pitcher, is with the Jersey City team in the Eastern League this season. He has worked in two games and was beaten by close scores each occasion, but writes Lancaster friends that he will soon be in shape.

Justus, who was one of the most popular players in the Ohio State League for two seasons, writes:

"Of all the cities I have played ball in, give me old Lancaster for mine. I have a great big warm spot in my heart for every Lanktown fan and I proudly hope that before my baseball career is ended that I shall again wear a Lank uniform.

"I consider the greatest year of my life was in 1908, when I helped you to win a pennant.

"This Eastern League is too swell for me. They pretty near make you play ball in a full dress suit. I would a whole lot rather be down at old Eagle park, a-shaking my old curly head and helping Lancaster to win another pennant."

Justus made two world's records while with the Lanks in 1908, pitching four no-hit games and pitching thirty-nine innings of ball in four consecutive days, winning four four games. He won the pennant for the Lanks by the latter feat, nosing Lima out in the finish.

HARRY LLOYD IS POPULAR IN LIMA

Harry Lloyd, one of the stars of last year's Lima team, is with the Portsmouth team on this trip, and has been busy ever since he arrived, shaking hands with his legion of friends in this city, where he is deservedly popular, says Bub Gableman in the Lima Times. Manager Childs has but four pitchers with him on this trip, Myers, a Cobbler southpaw, is at home nursing a sore arm.

On Way to Maysville

Infelder Clever of the Akron team, who was let out Thursday by Lee Fohl and was gobbled up by Maysville, was in Portsmouth Friday, enroute to the latter city. Clever is well known here. He says Lee Fohl has a great team in Akron and it looks like a sure pennant winner.

Champs Beat Lima, Hammond Injured

(By Bud Gableman.)

Lima, O., June 2.—That good natured German boy with the suggestive name, Mr. Beers, Weinberg's understudy behind the bat, was the main factor in winning yesterday's game at San Felice park for the Champs, his mighty blows with the bludgeon driving in all four of the runs scored off Eddie Donalds. As the locals could only register three tallies, it is needless to say that they lost, thereby breaking even with the Cobblers on the present series.

Had Donalds been able to handle Jones and Beers with the same ease that he wrapped the balance of the visitors around his finger, they would not have counted once. These two worthies between them laced out five of the eight hits credited to the Champs, and were both mixed up in the run-getting. Jones, the premier swatter of the Ohio State league, according to the latest averages issued, got a safe one every time he faced Donalds, while Beers saved his blowse till they counted.

It was certainly a hard game for Donalds to lose. He had perfect control, and had the rest of the team at his mercy. Eleven of the Champs went out on strikes, such noter sluggers as Tennant and Edwards performing the whiffing act three times each, while Horning did the stunt twice. However, all four of the runs scored by the visitors were earned, and they must be given full credit for pounding out a victory.

Opposed to Donalds at the start was "Rube" Harter, the Illinois wonder, and with a little better support, the tall flinger would probably have gone the full route. His curve ball was breaking badly for him, however, and he showed a tendency to wildness in the third, which caused Childs to substitute Harry Lloyd, last year's winning pitcher of the Stogies, at the close of the third inning.

Lloyd's pitching was easily the feature of the contest, not a man reaching first on him until the ninth. For five long innings the locals paraded up to the bat, three to the inning, and as promptly resumed their place on the bench. Lloyd was not so strong on the striking out stunt, but he had absolute control of the sphere, causing the batters to either send up an easy pop or ground weakly to the infield. He was accorded gilt-edged support by his teammates, not an error being chalked up to the visitors after he assumed the burden.

Nesser, first up in the last inning, landed the only hit made off him and threw quite a scare into Child's crew when he reached third on a wild pitch and an out. Lloyd kept after them, however, in his usual cool effective manner and retired the succeeding batters with ease.

The locals suffered not one whit in comparison with the Champs when it come sto fielding, if anything, having the edge on them on defense. The infielders romped from one side to another, nabbing everything in great fashion. Long's error being a muff of Childs' easy pop in the first round, which did not figure in the scoring. The outfielders also took care of everything that came their way in [illegible] fashion, so the blame of the defeat can not be laid to [illegible] home team.

Besides [illegible] the handy man with the willow, Beers made a couple of [illegible] of foul flies close to the grand stand and each time was [illegible] hand by the [illegible] Edwards made a [illegible] of a foul fly from [illegible] which took him [illegible] field, and followed [illegible] retiring the side [illegible]

[illegible] Casey behind [illegible] and he also [illegible] of ground behind [illegible] He had an [illegible] day, being credited [illegible] putouts, an unusual [illegible] for a receiver. The [illegible] team performed with much [illegible] and grace, and there was no [illegible] the game was over [illegible] to the umpire, who, in the opinion of a number present, decided a couple of close plays against the locals.

The game was marred slightly in the ninth by an unfortunate accident that befell Hammond, the visiting left fielder. In trying to dodge one of Donalds' inshoots, he received an awful wallop on the head, just above the left temple, which put him down and out for about five minutes. A physician was summoned, and the little fellow revived, but was unable to continue in the game. Weinberg, who unfortunately as it happened, was enjoying a day's rest, donned the windpad, while Beers took Hammond's place in right.

Neither side scored in the first. Hammond lined to Long for the first out, but Childs reached first safely when Long muffed his easy fly. Jones then started his field day with the stick with a rattling single to left, and both runners moved up a peg on Beer's out. Edwards left them stranded when he missed three. The locals did not even get a man to first in their half. Hinte opened by whiffing, McClintock lined to Horning and Houtz was retired on a grounder to the same station.

Lima forged ahead in the second, putting one run across, while Portsmouth remained runless. Conwell opened with a line drive over short, but remained at first while Tennant and Horning both fanned, and Harter grounded to Nesser. Nesser opened hostilities in the last half with a wallop that almost took a hand off Harter and went to second when Horning made an unnecessary throw, which eluded Edwards. Okey tried to advance him with a sacrifice, but popped to Beers. On friend's out to Childs, Nesser moved up to third. Newton was walked, and in attempting to pull off the double steal, Nesser was caught at home, but Harter had dropped the ball and he counted, Newton going all the way to third while they were running down Nesser. Long walked and stole, but Donalds ended the round with a grounder to Horning.

Portsmouth's first big round came in the third. Hammond had walked for a starter, and Childs, after making two ineffectual efforts to put him down, fanned. Jones got his second hit, a single to center, Hammond going to third and Jones to second on the throw in. Beers planted a beauty in right, scoring Hammond and Jones. While Edwards was fanning for the second time, Beers stole third, but Conwell ended the rally with a pop to McClintock.

The locals not only tied the score in their half, but took the lead again by the narrow margin of one run. After Beers had made a pretty catch of Hinte's foul, McClintock singled to left. Houtz followed with a double, which Hammond played badly, getting but one hand on the ball. Childs ordered Harter to pass Nesser purposely, but Okey, to show the visiting manager that he was held too cheaply, scored McClintock and Houtz with a timely single to right. Okey was nailed in trying to steal second and Friend was retired, Horning to Edwards, ending the inning.

Donalds retired the side on strikes in the fourth, Tennant, Horning and Hammond taking three vain swipes at the ball. Harter had sandwiched in a hit between the second and third whiff but it availed nothing except to increase his bating average. Mgr. Childs sent Lloyd to the rubber to replace Harter in this round, and from then on to the ninth, it was one, two, three for the Stogies, but fifteen men facing Lloyd in five innings.

In the meantime, Portsmouth had been landing a man on first now and then, but Donalds was always there to prevent scoring. Childs singled in the fifth and was advanced to second by Jones, but the next two men went down in order, Edwards contributing his third strike out. Tennant also duplicated this stunt in the sixth, when not a man reached first.

The heavy artillery was on in the seventh, however, and before the side was finally retired, the Champs had scored two runs and cinched the game. Donalds made the fatal mistake of passing Childs, the first man up, while Jones hopped him around with his third hit of the game. Beers, up again in a pinch, delivered nobly with a double down the right field foul line, which scored Childs and Jones with the tying and winning runs. Jones might have been held at third, had Hinte's throw been handled a little faster. Beers had hustled around to third while the play was being made at home, and in attempting to steal home a little later, was called out on a very close decision.

There was nothing doing in the eighth, both pitchers retiring the sides in order. Hammond was hit by a pitched ball in the ninth, but Hartwig, running for him, never reached second. The Stogies looked dangerous in their last time at bat. Nesser, first up, being the first man to reach first off Lloyd in six innings. He cracked one over second good for a base, and went to second on a wild pitch. Okey, in the meantime, had popped up to Lloyd trying to lay down a bunt. Nesser went to third on Friend's out to Childs. Newton was implored to drive Nesser home, and tie the score, but his best effort was a hard hit straight at Childs, which the veteran manager handled with ease.

It was a great game, full of exciting incidents all through, and the result was ever in doubt. But a small crowd witnessed the game, but they stayed to the final windup. Chillicothe opens a three games series here tomorrow and as Wrigley's crew have been going at a great gait for the past few weeks, they should attract a large crowd. Today is ladies' day and this wil no doubt, mean a large crowd.

KIRB WHITE IS SOLD TO THE INDIANS

Pitcher Kirb White, with the Lancaster Champs in the Ohio State League three years ago, has been sold to Indianapolis by the Pittsburg team. White was secured by the Pirates from the Boston Nationals early last season, Pitcher Sam Frock and First Baseman Bud Sharpe being given in exchange. Shortly after joining Pittsburg Kirb pitched good ball, one of his most noteworthy performances being the pitching of thirty innings without allowing his opponents to score a run. His record for last season with Pittsburg was 10 games lost and 9 won.

Checkered Career

Plummer, playing right field for the Molders, is well remembered by some of the older fans. He was with Springfield for a short time the first season this city was represented in the Central league. Plummer was with Hamilton earlier in the season but he was let go by Manager Barton.—Springfield News.

EDITH RICKERT

TO be sure, a girl not two years out of college had no business wandering the woods alone; but this was the very spice of the adventure. And after all, the trackless wilds of New Hampshire could not harbor anything more dangerous than a few deer, such as had just pit-patted down a gully, leaving her frozen with momentary fright. But she was clearly lost; and the underbrush grew thicker and thornier with every step. Her white serge dress was torn in six places or seven; her arms were bleeding with scratches; and her hair was all about her neck.

Suddenly she stopped short. "Oh, dear! I can't go a step further; I am just a babe in the woods! I shall sit down and die and let the robins cover me up! But I wish there were two of me—I wish somebody—" She raised her voice in a shrill Coee-ee! that echoed in the silence and made a squirrel above drop nuts and scold her for his loss. She waited a moment, then flung up her elbow to protect her eye, and dashed through the tangle until she found herself, torn and gasping but free, in a clearing. As she stood arranging her hair and recovering her breath, she suddenly spied an inconspicuous log cabin at the far side of the open space. With a half sob of relief at the near presence of humanity, she ran toward the hut until she could see and read to the right of the open door a rough slab of wood painted with large letters of a gory-red hue: "The Three Bears. Keep Out!"

There she paused, half frightened, but, being a woman, was the more moved by the prohibition to go in and ask why she should keep out.

There was no sign of life about the place—no sign of any danger. Moreover, she had lost all sense of direction and knew that unaided she had small chance of finding the hotel; she was weary and she wanted her supper. She concluded that the sign must be a joke, and that even if the people were inhospitable they must be human and could not refuse to set her in the right way.

She crept slowly up to the door, with many pauses and flutters, and starts; but as nothing stirred, she at last gave a timid knock on the post, and hearing no answer, peeped in.

The one-roomed log cabin was quite empty; but it was trim with a kind of primitive neatness and order, set out with rude hand-made furniture and cheap village wares. A log fire smoldered on the hearth and a pot that bubbled slowly hung over it on a hook.

"Why-ee!" cried the girl suddenly. "It's just like a fairy-tale! There are the three basins on the table—only there isn't any soup in them! And there are the three chairs in a row before the fire! I guess I'll try them."

All her fears gone now, she walked boldly across the room, climbed into the biggest chair—a great, high-backed, rough-hewn, clearly home-made article of furniture; but it was altogether too straight and deep and hard for comfort. Laughing to herself at the adventure, she tried the second, which was similarly made, but with very short legs and a humpy cushion of sacking that she did not like at all. The third pleased her—a low splint-bottomed boughten chair with a fluffy-looking red-calico cushion; but the moment she sat down, she began to slip, with a terrible creaking noise, and barely saved herself from going through to the floor. When she lifted the cushion she found the splint-seat gaping, and she was at once bewildered and half frightened to find the fairy story so literally coming true. She brought all her common sense to bear on the situation, to prove that it was only a coincidence with probably a quite natural explanation—when she came to know it.

"Well, I may as well go on trespassing, I suppose," she said resignedly, "and pay the damage later. I am so hungry! I wonder what's in the kettle!"

She took another survey of the table, discovering, besides the large porringer, the middle-sized soup-plate and the little shallow basin, a loaf of bread, and—a bottle of——

"Mustard!" she cried. "French mustard! Fancy bears eating French mustard! But what would they eat it with? Oh, I must see what's in the kettle!"

She pried up the lid and was enveloped in a steamy savor that made her hunger gnaw three times as fiercely as before.

"It looks clean!" she cried suddenly. "I don't care—I will! I can never get home without!"

She found a cup on the table and ladled the little basin full, and cut bread and fell to. The soup was so good that she emptied her dish twice before she felt able to stop. "But what could they want with the mustard?" she wondered.

Strengthened as she was to face her problem how to get home, she was yet no nearer its solution. If only somebody would come—anybody—who could get her out of this scrape. She had a feeling that the hour was near sunset, and if she wandered away now, she might have to spend the night in the cold, lonely woods. It seemed almost better to wait in the snug little cabin for the coming of the Three Bears—whoever they were. Of course, they were bound to be people!

This decided, she looked about for a comfortable place to rest, the chairs being hopeless. At the far end of the room lay a cot-bed covered with coarse blankets; but prudence counseled keeping near the door. Under the window beyond the fireplace was built a rude seat on which lay a bearskin rug and a calico cushion to match the one on the smallest chair.

"This must be the Little Bear's bed," she said, feeling very drowsy. She dropped on the rug, and laid her head on the cushion to think a minute. . . .

And then the Three Bears came and stood in a row grinning down upon her and lolling out their red tongues, and the Little Bear gave a jump and landed on her chest with a horrible snarl. . . .

She opened her eyes with a scream, and a heavy furry thing that must have been on her chest jumped to the ground and disappeared. But a great shaggy head, on a level with her own, remained real, staring and panting, then suddenly stooped and thrust a snuffling nose against her shoulder.

As she struggled to disentangle herself, she came suddenly face to face with the third bear who had risen from the arm-chair, it seemed, and stood looking at her with a grin on his shaggy, bearded face.

As her vision cleared, she gasped: "Why, you're only a man!"

"That's all," said he. "And a dog—breed unknown—and a coon-cat. Sorry we disturbed you, but you were warned to keep out."

"I know," she said, almost ready to cry with relief, "but I had lost my way; and I was so tired and hungry! I couldn't go a step further; and I don't know how to get back to the hotel."

"Well," said he, "it sounds a good excuse for trespassing. Sit down while we consider the situation."

With this she was suddenly quite at home with him: "I have tried all your chairs." Only a nice man would have taken things so much as a matter of course.

"And broken Timon's." He found it out at once. "And you ate Timon's soup; and lay down on his bed—poor Timon! He got the worst of it."

"Poor who?" she asked, demurely, retreating again to the seat under the window.

"Timon. And the Middle Bear is Diogenes. See—he's ready to make it up; you might give him a paw. And the Great Bear—oh, well—Ursa Major will do for a name, if you know what that means?"

"Of course!" she cried indignantly. "I've my name is Madeline Fairbairn, and we are staying at the Runnymede House, and please—will you show me the way there before it's dark?"

"With pleasure," said Ursa Major, beginning to blow up a flame with the bellows, "as soon as the storm is over."

"What storm?" she asked; and was answered by a sheet of flame and a reverberation that made her shrink away from the window.

"Better come over to the fire," suggested Ursa Major. "You can have Timon's cushion on the hearth and keep the bellows going"—he put on two fresh logs as he spoke—"while the Three Bears eat their dinner." He added tactfully: "Unless you will join us?"

She hurriedly declined the invitation and set to work with the bellows, wishing that she could explain how she had meant to leave money for what she had already taken. But he was not a man to whom this could be said.

"Why, you're only a man!"

"Sure?" said he, as he finished filling the three bowls. "Then we will eat together as usual." At a curious clicking that he made with his teeth, Timon came leaping from the dark end of the room where he had been sulking for his injured dignity, and jumped up on the far end of the table, while Diogenes lumbered into the middle-sized chair.

They both waited politely until Ursa Major had cut bread and broken it into their basins; and then upon another click from him, they fell to.

"Do they understand you?" asked Madeline in surprise.

"Oh, yes, we talk a great deal together. They're the only friends I have in the world," said Ursa Major impassively.

"Oh!" cried she, and dropped the bellows to cover her ears against a terrific peal of thunder. After that, there was no more conversation until the storm lulled; but the Three Bears ate imperturbably, which was, under the circumstances, the politest thing they could do. Madeline felt her heart warming toward them.

"Guess I'd better light a candle, and clear the table," said Ursa Major at last, when the thunder had given way to heavy rain. "You've made poor work of that fire."

She flashed a smile upon him. "Suppose—suppose I put the dishes together—and you blow up the fire?"

"All right," said he. "You may wash 'em too, if you like. I'll get you the dish-pan."

As she went to the table on which he had set a lighted candle, she broke into soft laughter.

"What now?" he asked, stopping the bellows.

"I wondered what you would do with the mustard? But where did you get your baked potatoes?"

"From the ashes, of course. Didn't you see me rake them out? I always use mustard when I haven't any butter. One has to make shift up here in the woods."

It was on the tip of her tongue to ask why he lived there; but she said only: "Do you think the storm will be over by the time I've washed your dishes?"

"Sure!" said he, making a beautiful flame.

"Then when you've brought in the dish-pan and the soap and the towel——"

"Towel?" said he. "You're too civilized. You just get 'em clean and I'll dry 'em here on the hearth. That's my way!"

He poured the hot water on the soap, making a beautiful spuzzy suds; then she said in a tone of command: "Now get your pipe hanging over the shelf there, and sit down just as if I weren't here. Talk to the other bears. I like to hear you."

He laughed as he reached for the briar-wood. "You've hit it about the pipe, but the other bears won't stand it to be waked from their after-dinner naps, so I shall have to talk to you."

"I don't mind," she answered graciously, giving him the first bowl to dry, "if you've anything interesting to say."

"But I haven't," said he. "How could I? I haven't talked to a woman—except farmer-folk—for two years."

"But I suppose that was your own choice?" she suggested demurely, swishing the second bowl round and round in the suds.

"May be," said he soberly. "But I haven't thought so all along."

"Why, what did you think?" she asked, in frank surprise.

"I thought they'd given me the go-by—all that I cared for," said he. "And as for your summer visitors—Lord!"

"I am a summer visitor myself," she teased.

"I know—but I hadn't seen you, you see."

This was a trifle embarrassing, so she hurriedly passed him the second bowl, and between them they nearly broke it.

"That was a narrow escape," said he, "If it had broken, I should have had to return to civilization to buy another."

"Better use enamel ware," she said curtly, "if you are going to be a savage."

"Is it so bad as that?" he asked, taking out his pipe and surveying himself, as well as he could. "By Jove, I do look pretty rough! You wouldn't know me shaved and dressed like a Christian."

"I suppose there is usually a good reason for such a state of things," she observed, in the tone of one that had no desire to hear more.

"I don't know. I was pretty sick when I came up here two years ago."

"Sick?"

"Not in body. How would you have felt if your particular chum—a fellow you'd known all your life and roomed with through college—if he'd made away with nearly all the money you had in the world?"

"I'd have worried him till I got it back," said she promptly.

"Would you—if he'd made the thing complete by marrying the girl you were engaged to?"

"Oh!" said she. "And didn't she know—about him, I mean?"

He answered indirectly: "I'd have opened her eyes if it hadn't been too late—at least, I think so. As it was, I cut and run. Came up here to think it over."

"And have you been thinking it over ever since?" she asked, taking him the soup-plate.

He laughed. "About the girl? No. I got over that part of it in two or three months. I found I could live very well without her. But it seemed sort of natural to stay on—habit, I guess. I'm naturally lazy, and I'd lost heart, you see. There didn't seem to be anybody to work for, or any special reason for going back."

"There!" said he, carefully wiping the table. "Now if you will empty the dish-pan and put the things away, you are all straight. Has it stopped raining? My mother will love it!"

He rose and went to stand in the open doorway. "It's clearing. We shall have daylight again and perhaps a streak of sunset. Let me see your shoes. Too bad! They'll be soaked. Sorry I haven't an umbrella. No hermit ever has. But I'll find you an old coat to keep off the worst of the drip."

"Are you going to keep on being a hermit all your life?" she asked, while he rummaged at the far end of the cabin.

"Can't say, I'm sure. Now put this on. Wait a minute. We shall need a lantern. Diogenes will come—hey, boy?"

The cynic began a series of springs against the white serge dress; but Madeline was too absorbed in her thought to push him away. "I think you ought to go back and be civilized," she urged.

"Why?" he asked, busy with the lantern; and she was hard put to it to find a sufficient reason.

"Why, most men of your age——"

He laughed. "My age? How old do you think I am?"

"Old enough to be doing something useful!" was her severe comment.

"That's true," he granted meekly. "However, there's plenty of time yet. I'll bet you what you like, I'm not ten years older than yourself. Besides, I've been living up here—isn't that useful?"

"It looks very selfish to me," she said.

"But what else could I do? You see, the girl threw me over," he urged in comic distress.

"As if girls were all!"

"Still, they do count for something, you know," he insisted, as he held out the coat for her to slip into. "They're not the whole show, of course; but then I haven't been altogether idle up here in the woods. It isn't a bad place for a naturalist to hang out his sign. I shouldn't wonder if I could get a decent job if I ever go back."

She was too embarrassed by her blunder even to apologize, and he continued cheerfully: "If you'd been a naturalist yourself, you might have seen a few signs of my occupation about——"

She recovered herself enough to say: "But being only a girl—well, I take back what I said. Stay a hermit if you like. Where's Timon? I want to say good-by to him. Poor little Bear, did I break um's chair and steal um's dinner and abuse um altogether?"

But Timon only opened one eye to her caresses, with a sound that seemed equivalent in his tongue to "Get-along-with-you!"

"Soured!" said Ursa Major. "Leave him alone—he's hopeless. He doesn't know a nice girl when he sees her. Come, Diogenes!"

With that, he stepped out into the twilight with his lantern. The cynic went crashing ahead through the underbrush; and the girl picked her way over the sodden leaves as fast as she could follow.

"Are you sure you know the way?" she asked, and then there was no more speech between them, for the need of keeping clear of wet brambles and wayside pools, until they came out upon the road, and saw the lake gleaming between the ranks of trees and Runnymede House with lights beginning to twinkle in its windows. But it is probable that both had been thinking, and who knows?—Diogenes too may have had his thoughts. Certainly, at the end, he came and snuggled his nose in Madeline's hand, as if admitting her of their fellowship and loath to say good-by.

At the white gate Ursa Major paused. "You'll be all right now; and we must be getting home." He whistled for Diogenes, who seemed to have the intention of entering the hotel and was deaf to the call. "He's not shy—bless the brute!" said Ursa Major impatiently, and continued to whistle.

"Are you—when you are shaved?" asked Madeline.

"Oh, I don't know——"

"Then why don't you shave?"

"Would you like me to?"

"I've no idea. You'd have to try."

For a moment they looked at each other by the dim light of the lantern; then he whistled again for the truant, and after waiting a moment with ill-concealed impatience, turned away: "You'd probably treat me as badly as the other girl did."

She withdrew into the shadow several steps up the path before she said naughtily: "But you'd get over it twice as fast because it would be your second experience—or your tenth, for all I know!"

It was at this point that Diogenes raced back out of the darkness and laid his nose in her left hand. She took him by the collar and together they returned to the man who still lingered swinging his lantern.

"Thank you both for bringing me home," said she, "and my love to Timon, please. And you all look so happy in your cabin up there, I'm sure you'd better stay."

"Hang it! I'll shave to-morrow," was his irrelevant retort.

"Oh, don't!" she expostulated.

"And come down and call and—drink tea, I suppose! But I haven't any money; and I'm not sure that I want to stop being a bear and go back into the world and make some."

"You needn't stop being a bear," said she, and added: "I like bears!"

With that she fled up the path; and by the look of the lantern and the sounds on the gravel, it would seem that both bears pursued her. Like the little girl in the fairy-tale she got away—for that time; but this story has a different ending.

"Are you sure you know the way?" she asked

BIG CROWDS FLOCK TO SEE BANNON TROPHIES

William H. Schwartz of the Schwartz Tailoring Co., stated to a Times representative Friday morning, that more than 1000 persons called at his place of business to examine the splendid trophies of Arthur Bannon's hunt in Alaska last year.

The trophies are beauties and the "Strenuous One" has nothing on Portsmouth's popular attorney when it comes to his prowess as a hunter. The pelt of the big grizzly bear, more than eight feet long is admired the most by men, while the women display a fondness for the mounted goats and beaver and otter pelts. The work of mounting the trophies was entrusted to C. C. Berg of Seattle, Wash., who carried off the prizes offered to taxidermists at the Yukon-Alaska Exposition, and who is considered one of the world's experts in his line. The trophies consist of six bears, moose, two mountain goats, otters and beaver, skull of grizzly and last but not least Mr. Bannon has on display his trusty Winchester rifle, keen edged hunting knife which he purchased in England and his hatchet.

Mr. Schwartz stated that the trophies would remain on display until Monday evening and that he would keep open house Monday evening in order to give every one interested a chance to examine them.

FERRY CHANGE CAUSED BY DISPUTED ACCOUNT

It was learned Friday that the change resulting in Capt. Ed S. Williamson being succeeded by Capt. Harvey Redden as commander of the C. & O. ferryboat followed a dispute over accounts.

Capt. Williamson in conversation with the Times admitted that differences regarding his April receipts and collections caused the breach between him and his superiors. Through some clerical errors, due to carelessness, a sum of about $100 was unaccounted for. The mistake was no reflection upon the captain's honesty. He had never made the slightest pretense to possessing clerical ability and his wife kept his books. It was during her absence from the city throughout the month of April that the irregularities occurred. An outsider had been employed to keep the books and the collections of the boat were in different hands almost every day. Mrs. Williamson is inclined to hold herself responsible for the unexpected difficulty for she says that had she not gone away it would have never happened. It is expected that the matter will be adjusted satisfactorily in a few days.

Capt. and Mrs. Williamson expect to continue their residence in Portsmouth and the former is now planning to establish a small daily packet line between this city and Augusta, Ky.

ACTORS IN THE PROBE OF GREAT STEEL TRUST

Washington, June 2—The Stanley congressional committee, which is now investigating the operations of the United States Steel company, will, it is stated here, procure the appearance of former President Roosevelt on the witness stand, as well as former United States Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte. The committee, headed by Representative Augustus O. Stanley, is desirous of learning all the facts concerning the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel trust. The story, based on the testimony of John W. Gates before he committee, appears to be that Roosevelt, through Bonaparte, permitted the absorption of the company by he trust when the Sherman anti-trust law would ordinarily have served to have prevented it. Geo. W. Perkins, long a partner of J. P. Morgan and who is now said to have accelerated the panic of 1907, is alleged to have brought influence to bear on Washington authorities to enable the taking over of the coal and iron company by the steel corporation. Mr. Perkins says he will testify before the committee, together with other high officials in he steel company. J. P. Morgan and Andrew Carnegie will he called as witnesses on their return from abroad. It is stated that the government will bring a suit against the trust based on evidence secured by he Stanley committee.

OBITUARY

Ralph Bauer.

Cruel fate laid a heavy hand upon the happy home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bauer, 233 East Eleventh street, when death robbed them of their eldest son Ralph Wilbur Bauer, Friday morning at 4 o'clock.

The young man, who had passed his fifteenth mile stone only last Sunday, fell a victim to inflammatory rheumatism, from which he had been suffering but one short week. It is thought constant bathing in the Scioto river brought on the attack. He took to his bed one week ago, and despite the almost constant attention of physicians, grew rapidly worse. It was seen Thursday that his hold upon life was but a faint one, and shortly before night he was attacked by convulsions of the stomach and while he suffered excrutiatingly he passed peacefully away early Friday morning, conscious to the last and not afraid to die.

The young man was favorably known to many people in this city, where he was born and reared. He was a bright young fellow, being a member of the eighth grade in the Union street schools. His teacher, Mrs. McKeown speaks in the highest terms of praise of him both as a perfect little gentleman and adept scholar. All throughout Thursday his fellow pupils sent flowers to him and called to see him and bid him cheer.

He was a faithful member of the Second Presbyterian church, and for the past eleven years had rarely if ever missed being in the Sunday school.

During vacation days he assisted his father, a well-known cement contractor, and took a great delight in assisting his parents in the battle of life.

The young man besides his parents is survived by two brothers, Harold and Charles and one sister, Mabel. The funeral will be held from the residence of his grandmother, Mrs. Jacob Bauer, Monday afternoon, conducted by his pastor, Rev. C. H. Robertson. Burial in Greenlawn cemtery.

Charles Richard Mooney.

Charles Richard, the 4-year-old son of George A. Mooney, well known Socialist leader, died on Thursday night of cerebro spinal tuberculosis superinduced by the measles and whooping cough.
